Not Just Good, But Beautiful: The Complementary Relationship Between Man And Woman

Synopsis

In an unprecedented interreligious conference in November 2014, Pope Francis and four hundred religious leaders and scholars from around the world met in Rome to explore what their diverse faiths teach about marriage and “the complementarity of man and woman.” This book contains the most representative presentations at that closely followed event, Humanum: An International Interreligious Colloquium, which included Catholic, Evangelical, Anglican, Pentecostal, Eastern Orthodox, Anabaptist, Mormon, Jewish, Muslim, Jain, Buddhist, and Hindu delegates. Contributors bring the wisdom of their various faiths and cultures to bear on this timely issue, examining, celebrating, and illustrating the natural union of man and woman in marriage as a universal cornerstone of healthy families, communities and societies. With broad global representation, Not Just Good, but Beautiful uses fresh language and images to highlight the beauty and benefits of marriage. Contributors do not represent political parties, but speak from their religious, intellectual, and cultural knowledge and experiences.

You see, truth is still truth, no matter how many people doubt it. I may deny the law of gravity, but it doesn't change gravity. And just because we break God's laws, that does not invalidate them. A lie doesn't become a truth and wrong doesn't become right and evil doesn't become good just because it's popular. (Rick Warren) We stand and speak not with clenched fists or with wringing hands, but with the open hearts of those who have a message and a mission. (Russell D. Moore) I pray that this colloquium will be an inspiration to all who seek to support and strengthen the union of man and woman in marriage as a unique, natural, fundamental, and beautiful good for persons, communities, and whole societies. (Pope Francis)

World religious leaders and scholars explore what their faiths teach about the complementary relationship between man and woman in marriage.

The title of the book speaks volumes for me. This is an awesome anthology of essays on traditional marriage between a male and female. I appreciated so much the ecumenical and intercultural reflections. A deep and moving read that was both informative and moving.

Really good, if you are interested in the complementarity of the sexes. I teach high school girls and shared some of the articles with them.

I like this kind of reading. It helps us on how to understand each other. Beside, is always good to know different points of view about this topic. I recommend this book to those that are couples, married or not.

I bought this book for a class and it was the right one, but It is missing Chapter 2 which happened to be the one chapter I really needed. Unlucky for me, but just a heads up.

I found myself angry, rejoicing, weeping and profoundly moved by not only the book but by the event that gave birth to the book. A must-read!

I found this book to be fascinating with excellent authors.

Great book because it includes articl by N T Wright
