Really great book, and provides a level of information only possible from on-the-ground experience. Case in point, the Chimfunshi Chimp orphanage in Copperbelt province. Online, basically everywhere, people say you can stay there or camp, and that if you want you can do self-catering. Considering the closest town is 1-2 hours away, that's a big deal. This book was the only resource I found anywhere that pointed out that the ONLY option is self-catering. They have rooms, but you have to cook your own food. Not a big deal, unless you show up and don't bring any food. It's just one example, but it's a critical one.

Excellent guide. Purchased this for my son who's going to Zambia in the peace corps. So great that this book was written by former peace corps members. My son is very pleased with this book in helping him prepare for his upcoming service. Includes handy language guide, sites to see, travel tips and SO much more.
