IRAN: In A Persian Market

Synopsis

Iran: In A Persian Market is a compilation of news columns written during the reign of the Shahanshah, 1973-75, when Diane and her American family lived in Iran. Readers remain interested in the everyday personal experiences of an American family living in Iran. The stories of their adventure still remain relevant four decades later, although the country and middle east region have vastly changed politically. Perhaps this is because they are about the people of Iran and not the country's politics. Diane says she never seems to be "done" writing about the experience of living in the mideast. She has written two other books about Iran since publication of Iran: In a Persian Market; a children's book entitled, Sophie's Sojourn in Persia, and The Holy Present and Farda, her first book of poetry about Iran.
