125 Brain Games For Babies

Synopsis

Updated to reflect the latest research about how children learn, the revised edition of 125 Brain Games for Babies is a fun-filled collection of ways to develop the brain capacity of infants. Included are everyday opportunities to nurture brain development in the critical period from birth through twelve months. Each game and sensory experience presented includes an annotation on the latest brain research and how the activity promotes brain power in babies.

Customer Reviews

"I really like how simple this book is to use. Just find your baby's age range and pick a game. The blurb on each page about what brain research says is really informative, too." - 2012 Mom's Best Award Panel "I enjoyed the brain research bubbles. Sometimes infant play can seem a little pointless and it's nice to have the reminder that helps one think of it from a perspective of building the child up instead of just another simple activity. I also like the resources list and index of skills developed in the back of the book. I could see that being quite useful if you want to emphasize a certain skill for your child at a particular time." - 2012 Mom's Best Award Panel "I'd recommend this book to someone looking for ideas and who doesn't have much experience with children, perhaps a first-time mom. It's a good book to be included on a list of activity books to be used in combination with others for ideas." - 2012 Mom's Best Award Panel "I really like how simple this book is to use. Jackie Silberg, who has an M.S. in child development, is an early childhood advocate and popular keynote speaker. She received the Distinguished Alumna Award from Emporia State University, recognizing her current achievements as well as her long and prolific career. Jackie founded and directed the Jewish Community Center School of Music in Kansas City, Missouri, and worked for Channel 41 television, planning the music and performing her original music for a children's program called 41 Treehouse Lane. She wrote and produced a television show for Time Warner called Just Kids, which addressed children's needs and interests. Jackie has worked as a consultant with the Discovery Channel, setting up their music streaming website. She has given workshops, keynote addresses, seminars, and family concerts throughout the U.S., Canada, Australia, Germany, and in Singapore. Jackie has served as an adjunct instructor at both Emporia State University and the University of Missouri at Kansas City and lectures at Johnson County Community College. Jackie is the owner of Miss Jackie Music Company.

I gave this book to one of my friend's for her baby shower and then had to go buy another one for myself as it has many great activities for baby and parents to do together to help their developing brains at all stages. It's a must if you're having a baby! Highly recommended.

Was a great book! I recommend it as a shower present for first-time parents.

I am an infant teacher, so this book is perfect for me. I love it!

Great resource for new parents- lots of brain connections!!

simple, fun interactions to have with your baby. Also gives an explanation of how these activities support your baby's development.

Lots of activities.

This book is very helpful if your baby will sit and pay attention while you play the games. I found that my newborn baby would be interested for a minute and then on to something else. There are many games I couldn't do because she wouldn't put her hand on my mouth or look at what I wanted her to look at. I bought it for under a dollar though, so it is worth it for that. I found a lot of the games to be no-brainers but my daughter is 7 months now so maybe as she gets older I will have a different thought. In all, it has some good ideas, but don't pay more than $5 for it.

Sweet and adorable ways to interact with your baby from birth to 12 months of age, while promoting his/her motor, cognitive, language and social-emotional development. Mary Scholer (pediatric occupational therapist)
